

THE 2022 CANADIAN SAILING YOUTH SQUAD

March 2, 2021

Sail Canada is pleased to announce the continuation of the Canadian Sailing Youth Squad in 2021 for the 2022 season. This team will be given access to select training opportunities with the Canadian Sailing Development Squad, the annual Canadian Sailing Team & Development Squad Camp, national coaching at select regattas and will work with the Sail Canada technical staff on developing their racing skills within their regional and local training environment. New for 2021 is an exclusive camp for CSYS athletes.

How do I qualify?

The 2022 Canadian Sailing Youth Squad will be selected from the 2021 Canadian Sailing Youth Squads Trials Camp which will be hosted this winter in a location yet to be determined. The venue and date will be selected in the Fall of 2021.

Athletes can qualify to attend this camp through;

- One of six Sail Canada Regional Talent ID camps hosted in the Central (OS and QC), Atlantic, and Pacific regions

OR

- The Sail Canada Canadian Youth Championships ,

OR

- Other designated talent ID events as per below

The regionally designated and/or the regional provincial coaches at the Sail Canada Regional Talent ID Training Camps will nominate athletes to the Sail Canada High Performance Director and National Performance Coach who will then issue invitations to the camp.

Select invitations will also be given to athletes who have not qualified through the Sail Canada Talent ID Camps but have been recommended by the relevant Provincial Sailing Association.

Spots Available

For 2021, the camps will be focused on Laser Radials, Laser Standard transition (for those youth graduated from U19 in Radial), 29ers, i420's and Kites. Other classes may be added in future years as dictated by talent levels in each class that are part of the Sail Canada Youth Championships.

Q & A

1. How do I apply for the Sail Canada Regional Talent ID camps (Pacific, Central, Atlantic)?

Applicants will be able to register online for these events. Priority will be given to athletes that live within the region for each regional camp.

2. How will the coaches select athletes for the Canadian Sailing Youth Squad Trials Camp and the Squad itself?

Once an athlete is nominated from one of the qualification events, the athlete(s) and their coaches will be given a Sail Canada Talent ID form that they will use to assess the sailors' skills. The form will be submitted to the SC National Performance Coach & HP Director. In addition, each successful candidate from the Regional YOTS camps will be asked to submit a 5-minute video demonstrating specific sailing skills.

The 5 minute video should include

- leeward mark rounding in minimum 10 knots
- tack and gybe in minimum 10 knots
- 1 minute sailing upwind in minimum 10 knots
- 1 minute sailing downwind in minimum 10 knots

Once this is completed athletes will be invited to the Canadian Sailing Youth Squad Trials Camp.

3. What is my commitment if I were invited to be part of the Canadian Sailing Youth Squad?

If you are selected from the Canadian Sailing Youth Squad Trials Camp to be part of the 2022 Canadian Sailing Youth Squad the expectation is as follows;

1. Attendance at a 2021 CST / CSDS training camp
2. 1 - 2 weeks of training with the CST or CSDS in the relevant fleet
3. Attendance at one European event chosen by SC
4. Attendance at the CSYS camp (date tbd)

4. Do I have to leave my existing team or training environment if I am selected to the Canadian Sailing Youth Squad?

No, the Youth Squad training is meant to augment identified sailors skill development and it is SC's expectation that athletes go back to their daily training environments and pass on skills learned to their local or regional teams.

5. How much is this going to cost?

Sail Canada is investing close to $40,000 into this program. Having said that, this sum is not enough to cover all expenses. Participants can expect a small Trials Camp fee, a fee for the regional YOTs and talent Id camps and their expenses to get to the camps and competitions. Sail Canada will pay for the coach costs and accommodations for the athletes.

6. How does making the team relate to qualifying for the Sail Canada World Sailing Youth Worlds Team?

It doesn't, they are separate teams; however, if an athlete qualifies for the Sail Canada World Sailing Youth Worlds Team but has not previously qualified for the Canadian Sailing Youth Squad (CSYS), he or she will automatically be named to the CSYS.

7. What happens if the class I am sailing is not currently part of Sail Canada Regional YOTS (Pacific, Central, Atlantic)?

Due to limited resources, we can only support a limited number of classes at the Sail Canada Regional YOTS and talent ID in 2020. Athletes from classes other than the 29er and Radial, Laser, I420, and kites will be able to qualify for the Canadian Sailing Youth Squad Trials Camp at the SC Youth Championships.

8. What will the Canadian Sailing Youth Squad Trials Camp consist of?

The CSYS Trials Camp will be an intense sailing camp where athletes will be objectively measured and by the Sail Canada High Performance Support team. This will also include fitness and mental skills assessment testing. Athletes should expect each day to start at 7:30 am and finish at approximately 8:00 pm each night.
